Budapest, a Great Place to Live and Study

Budapest, part of the UNESCO heritage and also referred to often as the “Paris of the East”, the “City of Baths” and the “City of Bridges”, is famous for its 19th-century architecture, world-class music halls and a large number of historical baths. It is a cultural hub of the Central European region, but also gives home to a large number of international and multinational companies.

International Community
With approximately 13% of its students coming from abroad, Corvinus is a “melting pot” of students from different countries and cultures.

Excellence in Teaching and Learning
Do you wish to give your career a jump start? Let Corvinus be your first choice if you wish to study – in English – in the fields of business, economics or social sciences. Corvinus is a research university focused on education, where the output of the most recent international scientific research is integrated into the classroom materials. The Corvinus degree is fully acknowledged and accepted not only in the EU, but also worldwide – as our alumni from close to 100 different countries have recognised.

Careers and Employment
Corvinus University is an excellent institution to prepare for a great career. Its alumni work in domestic, as well as internal- and multinational companies worldwide. The employer satisfaction is the highest among those who hire Corvinus graduates.

Zeynep Dagdelen, ALUMNA
My first time at Corvinus University was when I went there as an exchange student. I liked it so much that I returned to do my Master’s degree. I couldn’t have made a better decision.

Corvinus has led the domestic rankings of higher educational programmes in the above fields for decades.

I have learned a lot during the programme and this contributed to my success at work, getting to the point that I was presenting to Oracle’s CEO, Larry Ellison this month. Not too many people from Oracle Europe can say they presented to Larry.
